

Special Training Programme

27 February—9 March 2012

Leadership for Postal Managers

What practices and behaviors can lead postal operators to business success in the current environment and how could we nurture the skills and talents to cope with emerging challenges? Answers to these and many more concerns would be explored in this important upcoming training event at the Asian Pacific Postal College.

The programme features experienced and inspiring international experts from the postal industry including Mr Jerome , Jean— Claude from La Poste, France and Mr Derek Osborn who has worked with Royal Mail for over 20 years and is among the best known business coaches and trainer around the world today.

Business transformation requires adequate management practices and leadership at all levels. This programme aims to fill this gap by involving and engaging postal managers to decide and discover the new practices they need to adopt to enable the transition of postal operators to thriving businesses of the new age.

